Dzongjug Pilot Test Conducted

Dzongkha Development Commission (DDC) is carrying out pilot test of a Dzongkha Standard Testing System (DSTS), Dzongjug in the different colleges in Bhutan. The DSTS is developed to assess the competency and proficiency of a person in the national language, Dzongkha. The DDC has conducted pilot test with 20 trainees of Royal Institute of Management (RIM), 86 students of Royal Thimphu College (RTC) and 74 students of Sherubtse College, so far. The purpose of conducting pilot test is to identify drawbacks, if any and make necessary improvements in the system.

The main aim of Dzongjug is to institutionalize a credible, uniform and single-source testing mechanism for assessing Dzongkha language competency in the country. If approved and adopted, the testing system will greatly contribute towards promotion and standardization of Dzongkha language, and also reduce expenditure on Dzongkha related exams for the government.

DDC carried out extensive research and incorporated the salient features of international language testing systems and

Dzongkha assessment systems practiced in the country. In particular, the Dzongjug system is based on the International English Language Testing System (IELTS). Dzongjug basically assesses the four primary skills of speaking, listening, writing and reading Dzongkha.

DDC plans to conduct a similar pilot test with Local Government (LG) functionaries and make presentations to the relevant institutions/stakeholders before submitting it to the Government for approval.

Jomolhari font added in Google's Repo

Upon request by the Dzongkha Development Commission and Department of Information Technology and Telecom, Jomolhari font, a free, Unicode compatible, Tibetan script font designed by Christopher J. Fyn is now added to Google's font repository.

<https://fonts.google.com/specimen/Jomolhari>

The font can now be used in G Suite Applications such as Google Doc, Google Slide, Google Sheet etc. The font can also be used by web and application developers by embedding the font like any other Google fonts without having to upload the font in the server. This also solves the rendering problem of Dzongkha characters in Google Slide. To be able to use the font in the G Suite products, click on "More fonts", search for "Jomolhari", select it and click on "Okey". You will have to do it only once.

An Agreement signed between the Dzongkha Development Commission and Dr. Karma Phuntshok

##

Coinciding with the auspicious day, an Agreement was signed between the Secretary of Dzongkha Development Commission (DDC) and Dr. Karma Phuntshok, President of Loden Foundation on 28th August 2019. According to the Terms of Reference (TOR), Dr. Karma Phuntshok will work as a Research Advisor for a period of one year in the Research Activity entitled 'Dzongkha Language Competency and Usage Study' being carried-out by Dzongkha Development Commission during 2019-20 financial year. The Research Activity is aimed at achieving the 12th FYP targets of DDC and collecting a comprehensive set of data related to Dzongkha, the national language of Bhutan. The research is being conducted with technical support/expertise from the Centre for Bhutan & GNH Studies (CBS) and the National Statistics Bureau (NSB).

Dzongkha Development Commission tops the national website competition

 Congratulations! Dzongkha Development Commission's website topped the National Website Competition (2018-2019) conducted by Ministry of Information and Communications. A total of 134 websites were registered for the competition. This is the second year in a row that DDC is winning the annual competition

The evaluation was based on the following main criteria:

1) Appearance (10%)

2) Content and Currency (40%)

3) Usability (20%)

4) Security (30%)

The winners of the competition were declared on 17th May 2019 coinciding with the celebration of 50th World Telecommunication and Information Society Day. Honorable Minister for Ministry of Economic Affairs chaired the celebration and awarding ceremony.
